The Prez Sez

We started out August with a short over-night trip to Prescott for the swap meet at Watson Lake. By we, I mean myself, Jan and Tobi. Tobi is aging and his left hind leg has atrophied. This posed a problem. After carrying him for a while, he gets a little heavy. I had an idea for a stroller for him and actually started the project a few years ago. I had put it aside because there was no real need for it. But, now was a good time to finish it. I had a small pedal car that I put a new chassis under, added a handle, primed it and Tobi had his own Yellow Bug convertible. Saturday was test day. We put him in it and he made no effort to get out. He rode around the swap meet like he was some doggie. He got a lot of attention. Then he seemed like he wanted out, so Jan let him down. He ran immediately to the cool green grass under one of the cars. Guess I will have to make some kind of top to keep the sun off him.

As most of you already know, I had my right kidney removed. The bladder cancer had metastasized to the lining of the kidney. The doctor had tried twice to get it all but he didn't feel comfortable with the results. We had to make a very hard decision. I could have the doctor keep trying to get all the cancer by the method he had used before with my prior surgeries or go ahead and have the kidney removed. After much prayer and thought, we decided it would be best to have the kidney removed so the cancer would not spread to the inside. As it turned out, the pathology report showed that it already had penetrated the lining to the inside. We had made the right decision.

It's been difficult adjusting to not doing anything productive. Just laying around is not my usual agenda. But, I have had to admit that I may be getting a little older and this might have been more taxing to my body than I thought it would be. The surgeon, however, was very pleased with the way things were going and he released me to the care of my regular urologist.

As I was sitting around, I came up with an idea for a putt. Even though it was on the spare of the moment, we had a great turnout. We met at the 'slab' at Gilbert Rd. and Baseline for a short ride to Joe's Farm Grill. Tom and Val brought their newly completed '55 Chevy Pickup which is very well done. This fulfilled their required putt and we will be able to vote on them September 5th.

When we arrived at the farm, the line for the grill was on the outside of the restaurant. Barbara and Terry Scott as well as Steve and Connie Roseman were already inside saving a long table. The gals gave their orders to the guys and they went inside to hold additional tables. The food was well worth the wait. There were about 25 of us that enjoyed the Supper Putt. Hopefully, we can have putts more often. So if anyone has an idea for a place to go, be sure and let me know. Good fun, good company. Let's keep 'em rolling.
